This is the bride and groom from my friend's wedding. Soon these two will be having their second child! When I found this, it took some time before I knew what it was a picture of.

Honorifics Explained

Throughout the Del Rey Manga books, you will find Japanese honorifics left intact in the translations. For those not familiar with how the Japanese use honorifics and, more important, how they differ from American honorifics, we present this brief overview.

Politeness has always been a critical facet of Japanese culture. Ever since the feudal era, when Japan was a highly stratified society, use of honorifics—which can be defined as polite speech that indicates relationship or status—has played an essential role in the Japanese language. When addressing someone in Japanese, an honorific usually takes the form of a suffix attached to one's name (example: "Asuna-san"), is used as a title at the end of one's name, or appears in place of the name itself (example: "Negi-sensei," or simply "Sensei!").

Honorifics can be expressions of respect or endearment. In the context of manga and anime, honorifics give insight into the nature of the relationship between characters. Many English translations leave out these important honorifics and therefore distort the feel of the original Japanese. Because Japanese honorifics contain nuances that English honorifics lack, it is our policy at Del Rey not to translate them. Here, instead, is a guide to some of the honorifics you may encounter in Del Rey Manga.

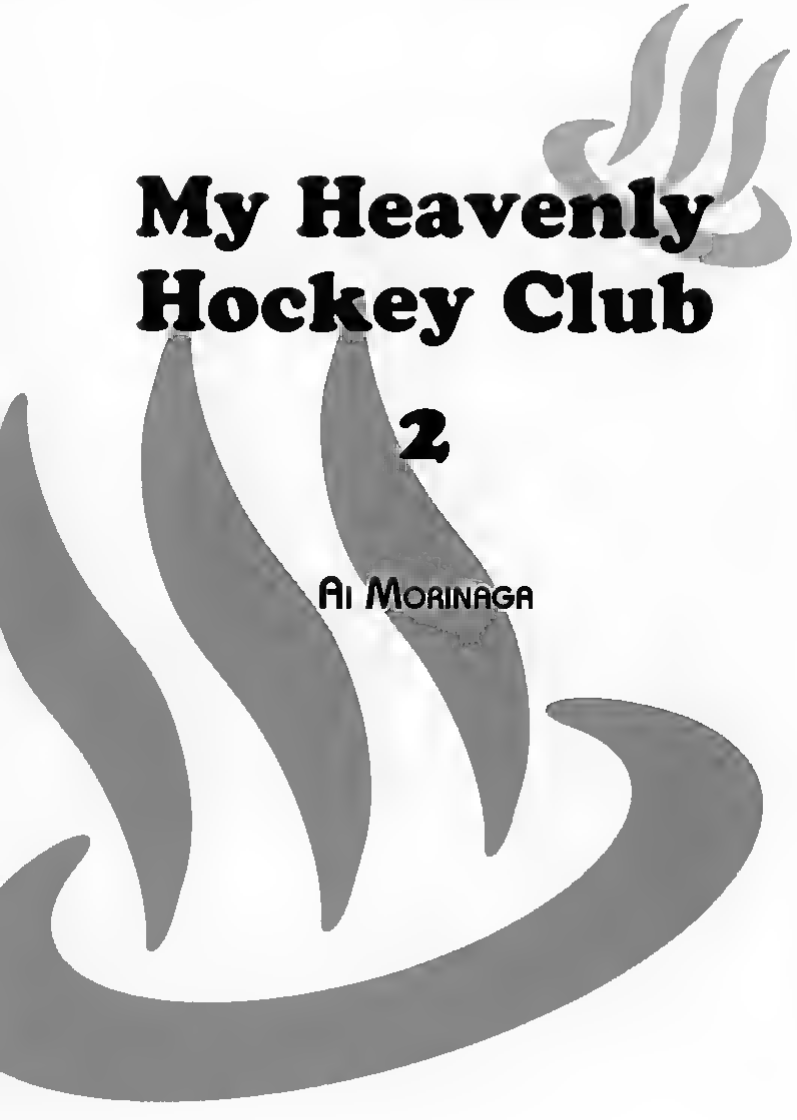
-san This is the most common honorific and is equivalent to Mr., Miss, Ms., or Mrs. It is the all-purpose honorific and can be used in any situation where politeness is required.

-sama This is one level higher than "-san" and is used to confer great respect.

-dono This comes from the word "tono," which means "lord." It is an even higher level than "-sama" and confers utmost respect.

-kun This suffix is used at the end of boys' names to express familiarity or endearment. It is also sometimes used by men among friends, or when addressing someone younger or of a lower station.

-chan This is used to express endearment, mostly toward girls. It is also used for little boys, pets, and even among lovers. It gives a sense of childish cuteness.



Bozu: This is an informal way to refer to a boy, similar to the English terms "kid" and "squirt."

Sempai/Senpai: This title suggests that the addressee is one's senior in a group or organization. It is most often used in a school setting, where underclassmen refer to their upperclassmen as "sempai." It can also be used in the workplace, such as when a newer employee addresses an employee who has seniority in the company.

Kohai: This is the opposite of "sempai" and is used toward underclassmen in school or newcomers in the workplace. It connotes that the addressee is of a lower station.

Sensei: Literally meaning "one who has come before," this title is used for teachers, doctors, or masters of any profession or art.

-[blank]: This is usually forgotten in these lists, but it is perhaps the most significant difference between Japanese and English. The lack of honorific means that the speaker has permission to address the person in a very intimate way. Usually, only family, spouses, or very close friends have this kind of permission. Known as yobisute, it can be gratifying when someone who has earned the intimacy starts to call one by one's name without an honorific. But when that intimacy hasn't been earned, it can be very insulting.

Oh.
Now that you mention it,

Wouldn't it be over by now?
That's right.
I completely forgot.
Isn't there a meeting for club presidents today?

We are the travel club, basically.
It's not like we have a match coming up, so why not?

GYRRRHH!
ぎゃーっ
GATRRHH
Don't say that! I was half asleep already!
Rahh, don't move, Izumi!
I can't help it! I'm a living thing!
How dare you say that! You're the one who fell asleep on my stomach!

PERK

Here, I got some Kazan brand Kamakura dorayaki. Let's have tea.
He was hungry. He is a growing boy, after all.

...You sleep on people's stomachs that often?
It's the worst stomach pillow I've ever slept on!
I didn't fall asleep on that hard stomach 'cause I wanted to.
It makes a lot of noise and it's uncomfortable to sleep on.

Akagiyama
GLANCE
The new student body president and vice president, the Ota brothers.
Who's that again?
We just had an election, remember?
Oh.
What club are you?
I was napping and forgot about the presidents' meeting.
Oh, sorry, sorry.
...About what came out of that meeting.
Yeah.
We don't care how much we get for club expenses.
Do as you see fit.
Or whatever.

Excuse me.

We'll let the tennis club have the vacant space.
We approved it without your consent, but it's your own fault you were absent.
Don't hold it against us.
We cannot afford to allow a club to occupy a room and grounds if they don't have sufficient activity.
One week?
You can tell us that...
SCRATCH SCRATCH
But no one will let us play with them since they all found out we had a bear as a goalie.
And we haven't practiced at all.
Word travels fast.
We've forgotten the rules.
A bear...?

You have one week to win a match, or the hockey club will be disbanded.
It was decided at the presidents' meeting.
Eh?

I'm looking forward to the end of this week.
Izumi Oda.
You may be the chairman's grandson, but you won't get any special treatment from me.
Y-yes!?
You.
You've got some anko there.

Hmph

Oh, it doesn't really matter. We can make a hockey field in my yard.
I'd like a bigger club room that we can use more freely.
There's room at my place, too.

Besides,
I'd like to have a match.

Please, take one.
The student body president's in the tennis club, isn't he?
Our tennis club is really good, and they've got a lot of members, so they don't have enough courts.
What's with that? He's just abusing his power.
Ah ha ha. We don't want to hear that from Izumi, do we, Hana-chan?
It's cold. Make some more.
The captain, right? And his brother's the manager.
Man.
What's their problem? Coming in here while we're eating.

Hey, Hana?
Hana-chan?

I saw something like this in a shojo manga a long time ago.
The picture of a maiden in love.
So that's her type.

...I see.
WHA!!?
Oh, so that's why she was acting strange...
You sure are slow, Brother.
Indeed. I am better than Oda, after all.
Heh heh heh heh
She's not really my type, but that girl is correct.
Did you see his face just now?
Arrogant as ever.
Likes flashy girls
She's an endangered species.
Watching you from the shadows like that.
But it's almost refreshing to see such a modest girl these days.

Nice seeing you!
Hello!
'lo!
But I wonder if that girl likes you, Brother.
I hate their devil-may-care attitudes!
What's wrong with it? Based on what they said yesterday, it seems like they'll let us have the hockey field.
I don't like it!!
I will crush that hockey club!

Gyaaahh!
Could it be Ōta...?
Don't say it! You'll remind me!
Ha... Hana!?

Hey, Hana.
Eh...?
You've been acting weird since yesterday.
Is something bothering you?

If there is something, I'll listen, so tell me.
Eehh? Even if I told you, Izumi-sempai...

You guys go on inside.
'Kay.
Take your time.

This club room and the hockey field really do belong to the hockey club.
Eehh~~~?
We're having a match.
TWITCH
We will win. and protect it to the very end from the tennis club!!

No. I just can't say it. It's too embarrassing.

The Nanbu Department Store is having a Hokkaido bussanten starting this weekend.
You like bussanten, don't you, Hana-chan?
When the match is over, let's go together. It'll be my treat.
We get the feeling anything that says Hokkaido on it has got to taste good.
Then starting tomorrow, we meet at six a.m.!
I-in that case, then...

Starting tomorrow, we have strict morning practice!

Translation Notes

Japanese is a tricky language for most Westerners, and translation is often more art than science. For your edification and reading pleasure, here are notes on some of the places where we could have gone in a different direction in our translation of the work, or where a Japanese cultural reference is used.

Kamakura dorayaki, page 8

A Japanese snack made of bean paste sandwiched between flour pancakes. Apparently it is the favorite food of the popular Japanese animated character Doraemon.

Akagiyama, page 11

Akagiyama is a volcano in central Japan. The pennant's significance is that it's a souvenir, and not related to hockey as much as it is to traveling.

Anko is a red bean paste.

Bussanten, page 29

Bussanten literally means "goods shop." A department store will hold a kind of fair at which they sell foods from different regions of Japan. In this case, Hokkaido, the northernmost island of Japan, is being showcased.

The Hanbu Department Store is having a Hokkaido Awareness starting this weekend.
You like sweets, don't you, Hana-chan?
When the match is over, let's go together. It's my treat.

Jaga-butter, page 52

A baked potato with butter.

Izumi-sempai, can I have a jaga-butter?
Aww. But he was such a good stomach pillow.
Hey, Hana. Don't ever do anything like that again.

Azuki and meso-ramen, page 53

Azuki means "red beans." Meso is a type of small eel, so meso-ramen is noodles served with eel.

Sato Nishiki and Satô's time of death, page 59

Sato Nishiki is the name of a famous kind of Japanese cherry grown mainly in Yamagata prefecture. But since Hana hasn't heard of it, she makes up her own interpretation of the term. Satô is a common Japanese name, and shiki can mean "time of death."

Shiomi manju, page 99

Salty cakes.

Furano milk pudding and double-fromage cheesecake, page 99

Both are foods they most likely got at the Hokkaido bus*santen*. Apparently the best milk pudding in Japan is made in Furano, a city in Hokkaido.

Judo Dreams, page 100

Judo Dreams, or Judo Icchokusen (The Straight Line of Judo), is a manga about a boy who wants to be the world judo champion that was made into a popular TV drama in the 60s and 70s.

Uni, nama-uni, and Rebunto, page 100

Uni is sea urchin, and nama-uni is raw sea urchin. Rebunto is an island in Hokkaido.

Yonezawa beef, page 62

Yonezawa is found in the Yamagata prefecture, and its beef is considered to be among the best beef in Japan.

Yamabushi, page 62

Yamabushi were originally warrior monks and ascetics—monks who dedicate themselves to their religion by abstaining from all worldly desires. Today, yamabushi refers to modern ascetics. In Yamagata, there is a place where people can experience yamabushi training, which includes fasting, meditating under waterfalls, and walking on fire.

Momotaro, page 69

Momotaro is a character from Japanese folklore, and the name is used here as a brand name. Momotaro was born from a peach, so it seems appropriate that a produce company would take his name.

SkyPerfect, page 117
A TV network in Japan

You take the middle and bring them to the thigh...
In the drama I saw on SkyPerfect, it was like this...
I don't want to see you getting stuck in that position, so please stop.

This year we're bringing back the Kinshûki for sure!
Yeah!
This is harder than I thought. Maybe we should look at the manga again for research.

Kinshûki, page 120
The Kinshûki, or Golden Eagle Flag, is the prize for the national high school judo tournament held each year in Japan.

Tatami, page 120
A straw floor covering used for Japanese-style rooms Because Judo is a Japanese art, they would use a Japanese room to practice in.

The gentle way, page 135
Another name for judo.

Unidon, page 101
Don is a large bowl, so unidon would be an uni served in a large bowl.

Chub Club, page 104
Since bu means "club," and debu means "chubby" or "fat," they are considering being the "de-bu" instead of the hockeybu.

Jigoku-guruma, page 104
Jigoku-guruma means "Hell Wheel" and is the certain kill move made famous by Judo Dreams.

Iron geta, page 109
Geta is the kind of footwear the Hockey Club is now wearing. Iron geta are worn by characters in manga such as Judo Dreams to help the martial artists get stronger.

Ishigaki beef, sôki soba, goya burgers, and Blue Seal ice cream, page 140

Ishigaki beef is high-quality beef from the Okinawa area. Sôki soba is a dish of noodles with a big piece of pork on top. Goya is a vegetable in the gourd family, grown in Okinawa. Blue Seal is a brand of ice cream, like Baskin-Robbins.

Goya, beni-imo, and sugarcane, page 145

These are all flavors of Blue Seal ice cream. Beni-imo is a red-purple sweet potato.

Denko-chan, page 160

Denko is the name Izumi made up for the electricity that he is using in so much excess. Denki means "electricity," and many Japanese girls' names end in -ko.

KEEP THE DREAM ALIVE!

Hana Suzuki has it good: She's the only girl in the Grand Hockey Club, and all the other members are super-hot guys. But the dream may be over. If the Hockey Club doesn't win its next match, the school will disband it! Hana and the boys are pretty much the worst hockey players ever. Can they get their act together in time to save the club?
